"You know, it's a funny thing but when you're old, as I am, there are all sorts of extremely pleasant things that happen to you The pleasantest thing of all is that you wake up in the night at about, say three a.m., and you find that you are half in and half out of your battered old carcass, and it seems quite a toss-up whether you go back and resume full occupancy of your mortal body, or make off toward the bright glow you see in the sky, the lights of the City of God, in this limbo between life and death, you know beyond any shadow of doubt that, as an infinitesimal particle of God's creation, you are a participant in God's purpose for His creation, and that-that purpose is loving and not hating, is creative and not destructive, is everlasting and not temporal, is universal and not particular. With this certainty comes an extraordinary sense of comfort and joy. Nothing that happens in this world need shake that feeling. . ."
